memberALERT DISCLOSURE

If you use the memberALERT service, you will receive alerts sent to the e-mail addresses you specify, regardless if you have opted out of receiving promotional e-mail. Please be aware that information transmitted via Internet e-mail may not be secure, and First Source Federal Credit Union can not guarantee the security of any information transmitted to an Internet e-mail address.

Although the First Source Federal Credit Union memberALERT service is designed to give you timely notice of specific events, it cannot provide immediate notice. You may encounter errors, interruptions, delays or failures in the receipt of your alerts which may or may not be out of the control of First Source Federal Credit Union, such as technical difficulties suffered your Internet service provider or wireless communications carrier. Further, some cell phones or certain other devices may omit a portion of the Alert. First Source Federal Credit Union makes no warranties to you about the timeliness of the memberALERT service or the accuracy, reliability, or completeness of any alerts we provide you.

Your use of First Source Federal Credit Union memberALERT is at your own risk. First Source Federal Credit Union will provide the memberALERT service and its messages to you on an "as is" basis without any warranties of any kind. Under no circumstances shall First Source Federal Credit Union be liable for any type of damages resulting in any way from your use of or reliance upon the First Source Federal Credit Union memberALERT service or the contents of specific alerts.
